Becoming a data scientist is a journey; for sure a challenging one. But how do you go about becoming one? Where to start? When do you start seeing light at the end of the tunnel? What is the learning roadmap? What tools and techniques do I need to know? How will you know when you have achieved your goal?

Becoming a Data Scientist - Curriculum via Metromap

Should the question be framed differently? How is data science different from data analysis? Data analysis seems to encompass all of data science and more because it involves models, visualization, simulation and significance testing or testing for independence, and attempts to answer questions about causality or what factors account for variability in a distribution.
